

Congratulations on purchasing your new table!

To ensure the enduring beauty and protection of your table, it's highly recommended to start the process of oiling it as soon as it arrives. Oiling is a straightforward yet significant step to enhance and safeguard the wood, though it's important to note that it won't completely seal the table. Hence, it's advisable to promptly address liquid spills and utilize place mats to shield against potential heat damage.

Oiling your table is an accessible task suitable for anyone.

Here's what you'll need:

- The appropriate oil for your table type.
- Two clean cloths.
- Ensure your table is thoroughly dry and clean.

Begin by applying oil onto one cloth and gently rub it along the wood grain on the table's surface. For larger tables, divide the process into manageable sections, while smaller tables can be oiled in a single go.

After approximately 10 minutes, switch to the second cloth and wipe away any excess oil from the top before it becomes tacky.

For the initial treatment, it's recommended to oil your table 2 or 3 times, allowing around 4 to 5 hours between coats. Don't overlook treating the underside as well.

Subsequently, you may find that oiling the table's top every 4 to 6 months suffices, depending on factors like exposure to sunlight and heat.

By following these straightforward steps, you'll ensure that your furniture maintains its splendid appearance and longevity for years to come. This dedicated care will reward you with a table that stands the test of time while retaining its allure and charm.
